ARIZONA LUTHERAN ACADEMY

About the school

Founded in 1978, Arizona Lutheran Academy constantly works to improve itself to make sure that each student's experience there will be of the best quality. Arizona Lutheran Academy's educational goal is to develop students who advocate for their own learning and develop a life-long love of learning. The school believes that their roles as teachers are to act as a guide, to recognize and develop individual unique gifts, and to provide a safe environment in which students may practice their skills and take risks in their learning. In keeping with the 21st-century learning theory, ALA students have the opportunity to engage in critical thinking, technological application, creativity, communication, and collaboration. Furthermore, they will include a common demonstration of highly engaged and hands-on learning, cooperative projects with fellow students, and where possible, they allow the students curiosity to drive their learning.

About the area

Known for its sunny climate and spectacular desert landscapes, Phoenix and the surrounding cities of Scottsdale, Glendale and other destinations in Arizona's Valley of the Sun feature vibrant culture and numerous opportunities for outdoor adventures and luxury. With the fabled Grand Canyon just four hours away, Phoenix is often thought of as the jumping-off point for vacation adventures, but the state's capital city also features attractions that, while perhaps not as awe-inspiring, are equally breathtaking. South Mountain Park, the largest municipal park in the USA, is another recreation mainstay that horseback riders particularly love. At Phoenix's Desert Botanical Garden in Papago Park, you can learn about the environment and see such sentinels as agave, yucca, ocotillo, palo verde, mesquite and saguaro cacti.
